

ABSTRACT

A system and method for processing sonar information from an underwater hydrophone array, at frequencies having wavelengths less than two times a 5 spacing between adjacent hydrophones. The method and system all for processing received underwater waveforms at high frequency limits beyond the mechanical limits of the array.